'The Sunday of the Word of God'

Pope Francis invites us to dedicate this Sunday to the Word of God. As Catholics, we are often criticised for not knowing our scriptures, but if we were to set ourselves the challenge of reading the bible cover to cover, we might be tempted to give up when we hit the Book of Leviticus, a rule book of laws and regulations (yawn). Perhaps, this is not the best way to deepen our understanding of Holy Scripture. As Catholics, we are fortunate that the Mass is punctuated with scriptural references, and the 'Liturgy of the Word' provides us considerable access to the bible, dedicated to proclaiming God's Word to us in 3-year cycles. Additionally, if we sung more of the proper antiphons rather than hymns (which we enjoy) at Mass, we would enhance our scriptural appreciation. The challenge would be to grow our parish choirs as these chants need a robust range of voices. Perhaps, this is an area of parish life where members could 'let their light shine'. The Liturgy of the Hours (the Divine Office) is another way in which parishioners can deepen their appreciation of scripture. It is the 'Prayer of the Church', belonging to all not just the clergy and the religious. Not only does it take us through the Psalms, the 'Office of Readings' also gives us access to the Saints, Doctors and Fathers of the Church who help us appreciate the meaning of the scriptures, for the bible without Tradition is an impoverished understanding of God's Revelation. Bishop Richard also encourages us to read the scriptures using the spiritual exercise of 'Lectio Divina', taking a small chapter from one book, especially the gospel and 'ruminating' (his word – meaning to chew) on it all day. Both 'Lectio Divina' or the 'Liturgy of the Hours' would be a good exercise for 10am on a Wednesday, when there is no Parish Mass. It just needs a co-ordinator(s), another opportunity for an individual(s) to 'let their light' shine in service of the parish. God bless. Fr Simon.
